POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Like perpetual motion, "the indispensable man" has yet to be discovered, but America may discover him next year—in the person of Franklin Delano Roosevelt!

Some wag has suggested that Eleanor Roosevelt probably personifies the nearest approach to perpetual motion, too, but that subject is not considered germane to this column.

To get back to the serious business at hand, the boys who beat the New Deal's tom-toms during campaign season have been casting about feverishly for some magic stratagem to spike the fourth-term issue which they know will be raised against President Roosevelt, if he runs again.

After much cogitation, according to reports emanating from the national capital, they believe they have found it. The public relations brain trust has decided that the best answer is a mighty propaganda build-up to the effect that only Mr. Roosevelt has the wisdom, the experience and the world-prestige to command the respect this country must have at world conference tables during the final years of the war and in the critical rehabilitation years which must follow the war.

In short, Mr. Roosevelt will be portrayed, not just as the man of the hour, nor as the man of destiny, for those slogans have become a bit shop-worn, but as "the indispensable man"—the man without whom the Nation will falter and freedom will perish!

The reason for the all-out, indispensable-man campaign, starting early and scheduled to reach a crashing crescendo just before the '44 elections, will become clearly apparent shortly when the debate opens in Congress on the Bailey resolution, designed to limit Presidents hereafter to two terms. While the wording of the resolution excludes Mr. Roosevelt from its provisions, the debate will turn the full glare of the national spotlight on the fourth-term issue—and the dangers to democratic government of a self-perpetuating hierarchy will doubtless be discussed, not only on the Senate floor, but at breakfast tables and dinner tables throughout America. To cope with that offensive by Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats, the Roosevelt followers must have a powerful defense—and they believe the President's admitted stature as a world figure is the only acceptable answer.

The development of this strategy, incidentally, is fraught with peril for the New Dealers, too, for Wendell Willkie, the man they fear the most, is also something of a world figure—and

Dr. Hugh Cramer Will Go to Salinas Hospital on July 1

Dr. Hugh Cramer who received his degree at the recent Stanford graduation, will leave July 1 for Salinas where he will have a residency at the Monterey County hospital, specializing in chest work. This hospital cares for numerous army cases of chest disorders as well as county patients.

Dr. Cramer, who completed a year's internship at the Santa Clara County hospital, goes to San Francisco Monday to take the state medical board examinations.

Mrs. Cramer, who has one year to complete her nurses training at the county hospital, will make her home here with the D. H. Cramers, after her husband's departure.

Sgt. Archibald Marries Local Girl

Word has been received of the marriage of Staff Sergeant Winfield L. Archibald and Miss Helen Rodrick at Independence, Kansas, on June 1.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rodrick of San Tomas road, Campbell, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Archibald of North Union avenue, Campbell.

Miss Rodrick traveled east and the ceremony was performed in the home of Rev. R. O. Penick at 6:45 in the evening. They were attended by Staff Sergeant and Mrs. David H. Partan. The sergeants have been buddies for the last year and a half and have advanced in rank side by side to their present rating.

The romance of the young couple began when they were students at Campbell Union high school. Later both attended Heald's college in San Jose.

Up to the time Miss Rodrick left for the east she was employed as bookkeeper and stenographer by the Coast Line Transportation company of San Jose.

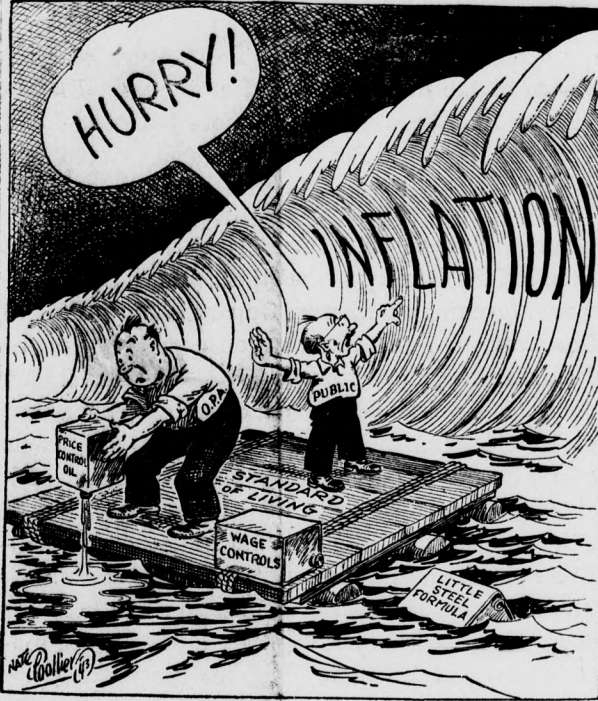

Prior to enlisting in the army Sgt. Archibald was employed by the Bank of America in San Luis Obispo.

The newlyweds are at home at 416 South Sixteenth street, Independence, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Cramer and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Burke of Los Gatos returned Saturday evening from Santa Cruz after four days spent in Mrs. Rose Hanger's cottage. They also enjoyed the visit of the Los Gatos Weaver's club to a studio in the Surf City.

the only American, other than Mr. Roosevelt, who might be said to have real world-prestige at this time. And Mr. Willkie, who denounced the third-term as a violation of every American principle in 1940, may be expected to hammer even harder on the fourth-term issue in 1944.

OIL ON THE TROUBLED WATERS

- Items In Brief -

"Rain—rain and more rain and still cold" is what Walter Smily tells in a letter received today by the Campbell Press. Located now at Centralia, Wash., he says everything is going as usual. He was very happy over a visit with a San Jose-Redwood Estates friend, who brought first hand news of the "old valley."

Howard J. Smith, who has been a rural mail carrier out of the San Jose office for several years, has been transferred to route 2 of the Campbell office, to begin his duties next Tuesday. He takes over the route which Campbell Davidson has been serving temporarily.

David Curry, son of Mrs. Marie Curry, R. N., of West Campbell avenue, has received an appointment to the California Maritime Academy at San Francisco, for which he will leave in about a month. David passed his entrance to the academy among the ten highest.

Cecil Keesling of Mill Valley and son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Keesling of Campbell, is leaving tomorrow (Friday) for West Virginia where he will begin his training in the Seabees.

Ralph Martin of Hayward, was a visitor in Campbell Wednesday evening. Ralph was manager of the theater here when it was first opened by A. Blanco.

THANKS

I wish to express our thanks to the Campbell Fire department for extinguishing the grass fire next door last Saturday and preventing a possible spread of the blaze to surrounding property. By my watch the fire truck arrived in less than three minutes after the alarm was turned in—not bad time!

T. A. Cutting.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Raffanti returned Sunday evening from a four day visit with relatives and friends in San Francisco.

Mrs. William Dalling, of North First street, was taken ill suddenly on Sunday and, on the advice of the doctor, was sent to the hospital on Tuesday. Her husband reports her condition as improving. Mrs. Dalling has been employed at the Drew Canning company for almost eight years and fellow workers wish her a speedy recovery and hope she can return for this season's run.

Sgt. Lucius E. Buck in the psychological testing division of the headquarters, New Mexico Induction district, Santa Fe, is home for a week on furlough, having arrived Monday. This is his first furlough for a year.

Leonard M. Ferro, 21, of Los Gatos, and Delphia M. Mullins, 19, of Campbell, were issued a marriage license yesterday.

Corp. James Fabling, U. S. M. C., who since 1941 has been in charge of discipline and censorship at the Treasure Island Naval brig, is now serving in the same capacity at the main naval brig for the bay area on Goat Island. Jim is a local boy who served in the marine corps during the last war; he is the brother of Mrs. Frances Swane and Miss Mary Fabling of Campbell.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rodrigues of Campbell, on June 13.

Richard Lynden Is Guest Speaker at Kiwanis Meeting

Richard Lynden, president of the Warehousemen's Union with headquarters in San Francisco, including 15,000 members, was speaker at the Kiwanis meeting Tuesday, presented by his father, John R. Lynden, chairman.

He stated that from about 1935 to 1937 the organizing of all warehouses in San Francisco was completed.

In dealing with his topic "Trade Unionism in War Time" he said there had been no strikes in the union since the beginning of the war, and that work has been speeded up. He denounced John L. Lewis, spoke against race riots, castigated gangsterism in unions, and undisciplined unions.

Union meetings are held in San Francisco twice a month in the civic auditorium with about 4,000 members present.

The C. P. A. audits the books of the union once a month and the results are open to those interested in them, he said.

A letter received from S. N. Hedegard, who is convalescing in Calistoga, was read.

Notice was given of a barbecue to be held July 6, at 7 o'clock at Ray Bishop's country place in Saratoga, and ladies night meetings on July 20, and August 17.

Visitors were Milton Nelson, P. F. C. Lloyd Nelson, Rev. Joyce Farr of Oakland, and William N. Lloyd.

Next week Jack Murdock will introduce Lieut. Elizabeth Henly whose topic will be "Life of Members of the WAAC."

Garden Forum Program June 26

The San Jose Garden Forum will present another outstanding program at its meeting to be held at Trinity Episcopal church parish house, San Jose on Saturday, June 26.

Audrey Drury of Berkeley, noted author, naturalist, secretary and executive officer of the "Save the Redwoods" league, will be guest speaker. Mr. Drury will illustrate his discussion with technicolor motion pictures.

Honor guests of the day will be the officers and charter members of the local Semper-virens club. Ex-Senator Herbert Jones will speak briefly in behalf of that organization.

An excellent and appropriate musical program is being arranged for this occasion.

The meeting will begin at 1:30 p. m., when a delicious dessert luncheon will be served. This meeting will mark the sixth in the Forum's present series of speakers on Conservation of California's natural resources.

Members of both organizations, the Save the Redwoods league and the local Semper-virens club, are urged to attend.

The Saturday Evening Post in its issue of June 26, now on sale, is featuring an illustrated article about Southern Pacific's gigantic war job, entitled "Brother, Can You Spare A Locomotive?"

Replete with colorful illustrations, the story deals largely with trains over "The Hill," the Sierra Nevada range to railroaders, and is a fascinating tale of war time accomplishments.

The time has come for everyone of us who is putting a part of his income into War Bonds to re-assess his or her contribution toward the winning of the war. To begin with we can all feel proud of what we have accomplished. There are more than 26,000,000 of us buying bonds out of income regularly. We work in 180,000 concerns, big and little. There is virtually no industry or business without a payroll savings plan in all America. Our War Bond purchases now amount to about $400,000,000 a month.

Now our national income has risen to record heights. Consumer goods have steadily dwindled. We will have 45 billion dollars above the cost of the necessities of life and present taxes in our pockets during 1943. There is plenty of dynamite in these loose 45 billions of dollars. Thrown into the fight in the form of war bonds this money has sufficient power to blow Hitler's armies to shreds. Mis-spent these 45 billions of dollars will bring misery and chaos to every American family.

More and more these facts are burning themselves into our consciousness. Where formerly one member of a family took upon him or herself the full war bond duty, now every working member of a family must share the responsibility. War Bond families are spring up by the thousands, especially in war work areas.

There is no longer a war bond yardstick which all should obey. Ten per cent may be your limit. However, for every 10 per center there are numerous potential 15 per centers, 20 per centers and even 50 per centers.

We are now in the invasion period of the war. The Yanks are doing the invading and not the Nazis. War costs will mount daily. The cost in lives is growing by the moment.

Can we do no less than to place our payroll savings on the same invasion tempo of blood, sweat and tears? Figure it out for yourself.

"WILL TO WIN"

Newspaper advertising as an institution has played a major part in the war, in developing the will to win, the will to sacrifice, and the will to work, according to W. A. Bowe, manager of advertising and public relations of a New York corporation.

Even those who have depended wholly on radio for their news, have turned to newspapers since the war, for information needed in shopping, in coupon purchasing, for the innumerable little details about what to do and where to do it that are forgotten when heard, and remembered when seen, clipped, and carried around in pocket and purse.

Most firms who advertised before the war have kept their firm names alive in some ways. Many firms, though not doing the volume of business previously enjoyed, maintain newspaper advertising because they believe in the newspaper as a medium of expression.

Newspaper advertising goes much beyond mere product sales. It is a means of accelerating war production, and certainly proved its value in the sales of War Bonds. As a morale factor, it is an essential.

The Germans alibi the decline in sinkings of Allied ships by U-boats by saying it is due to the smaller amount of shipping. But imports into Britain for the month of May were the highest since the beginning of the war, and there are always large, but undisclosed numbers of Allied merchant ships on the Atlantic. Think up another one, Adolf!

THE GOLDEN EGG

Did you have an egg—or possibly two—for breakfast this morning? If you did—or even if you didn't—listen to this: Reports have it that on June 15 Britons each received their 19th (count 'em) egg of the year! That's less than one each week. And yet, we talk about food rationing!

But, while the people of the "Tight Little Isle" must continue "tightening" their belts on one egg every eleventh day, the food outlook in general is very good. Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, reports that crop prospects are the best in Britain's history. War necessities have forced Britain to greater self-reliance at the dinner table. After the war, Britain will undoubtedly continue to be more independent of the rest of the world for her calories and vitamins.

ONE TOWN'S OPINION

There is a mounting furore, reverberating from one end of the country to the other, over the heatedly-debated question of whether Japanese from the Pacific Coast, now in concentration camps, should be released and permitted to return to their normal pursuits in civilian life. Governors, congressmen, cabinet members, columnists, radio commentators, labor leaders, business leaders, scores of government officials and sundry other experts—all have been heard on the subject, but congressional investigating committees still meet and the controversy still rages.

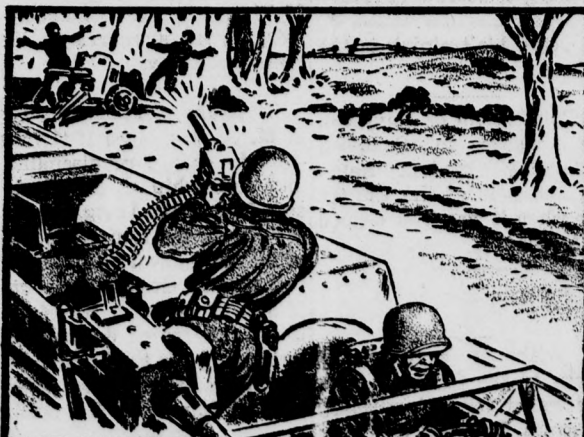

In one town, however, the question has been resolved. The people of Salinas took a poll on the subject—and voted 12,668 to 1 against permitting the Japanese to return to the Pacific Coast during the war, even if only those who were considered loyal to the United States were released. And even the one who dissented from the majority qualified his answer by insisting that only "the loyal, and American-born" be allowed to return.

But of what importance, we can hear Washington officialdom ask, is one town's opinion? In the case of Salinas, we believe it is of major importance—and major significance. For no town in California, and probably no town in America, has suffered as heavy ratio of dead and wounded in this war thus far as Salinas. The people of Salinas haven't forgotten the price their own Company C of the 194th Tank Battalion paid, bitterly seeking to hold back the Jap hordes on Bataan. To some, that may be history, but in Salinas fathers and mothers still long for the boys who won't return to them.

There is added significance in the Salinas poll because this proud Monterey county community once had more Japanese residents in proportion to population than any other city in the United States. The people of Salinas know something about Japs firsthand; they believe some are loyal, but they apparently don't believe we have any sure way of separating the sheep from the goats. And one town's opinion, in this instance, is also important in that it probably represents the opinion of all California. If California could vote on the matter, the Japs wouldn't be permitted to return to this state, at least during wartime. Of that we are supremely confident.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

Lt. Charles Broskas, of Brooklyn, N. Y., teamed up with another fighting lieutenant in a half-track vehicle at Arcrole, Algeria, to hand-grenade his way through two machine gun nests that flanked our line of advance, and then machine-gunned all resistance in the town. The enemy withdrew, and our columns advanced. Lieutenant Broskas was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

You can speed his visit home

by giving up your summer train trips

High point in many a service man's life is his short leave or furlough after months of strenuous training. This is often his last chance to visit home before going overseas — a last chance to see his parents, wife or sweetheart.

Furlough days are far too precious to be spent waiting for train accommodations. Yet nowadays our trains are so crowded that even service men on furlough sometimes have to "wait their turn."

Will you help make more room on our trains for service men and other essential war travelers this summer?

Please cancel reservations promptly if your plans change — release this space for use by other travelers. Postpone all train trips of a merely social, sight-seeing or pleasure nature until after the war.

This summer — unless your train trip is urgently necessary — you can do your country a real service by staying close to home!

THE BOOK MARK

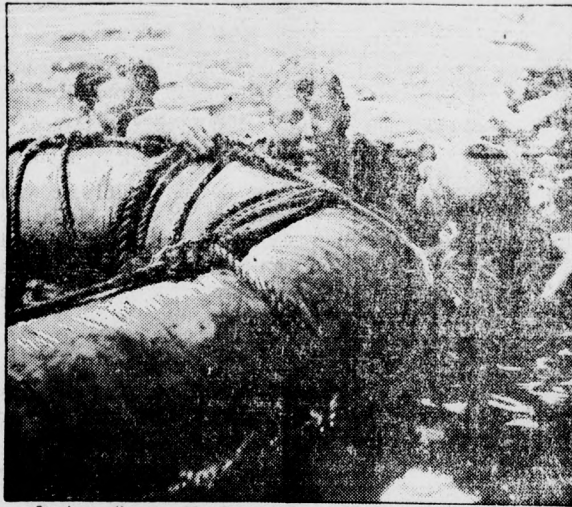

by marty

"Hungry Hill" by Daphne du Maurier.

Miss du Maurier's publications inevitably start a ripple on the sea of current good books. Her style of writing, simple and full, never fails to appeal to readers. "Hungry Hill" is a voluminous undertaking for an author, however, its equitiveness of entity commands lasting beauty and interest.

Here is a story of the copper mines in England—of the people who work the mines, the miners themselves, and of the people who won and operate the mines. The time of the book covers those years from 1820 to 1920, an entire century, and four generations of Brodericks and Donovans pass through its pages. "Copper John" Broderick, the owner of Hungry Hill, first conceived the idea of mining copper from the Hill, and his iron will and dogged determination drove him through odds, dangerous and difficult, to accomplish his purpose—that of creating wealth for his family and his heirs for generations to follow. The Brodericks and the Donovans were enemies from "way back." As the story goes, the Brodericks stole Hungry Hill from the Donovans several generations before "Copper John" came into the picture, but the ever present Donovans never forgot the wrong done the family, and as one Donovan died the remaining one carried on the feud.

John Broderick's family of five children present a colorful and interesting set of characters. John's wife died leaving him with the children when they were small. However, with his abundant wealth, social and political connections, his task of educating and rearing his family was not too difficult for him. The talents and interests of each one would, without any trouble, easily afford a separate book. Copper John's children, his children's children, and their children, and their children's children all add their bit to this massive book which in its initial purpose tells the dramatic and involving story of England's copper mining industry, mainly the human element.

Survivors cling to rubber boat while awaiting rescue in the screen's greatest picture sensation, "In Which We Serve."

The 5th Column

In the course of your gardening if you find the undersides of leaves covered with tiny green, pink or dark colored insects which seem to be without motion and each with a tiny bill or snout stuck into the surface of the leaf or tender plant stem, you will undoubtedly have come upon an infestation of aphids. Of all the sucking insects they are the most destructive because they come in such numbers unless checked by prompt spraying. Like the 5th column of war time they work quietly, and only careful search reveals them at all.

Aphids attack almost every type of plant and flower. They get on the young cabbage plants and cause them to become gnarled and crooked. The same type of aphid is found on cauliflower, kohlrabi, kale, radishes, brussels sprouts, turnips and similar garden vegetables. The pea aphid swarms upon the pea vines, and not only hinders the crop by draining it of its precious sap, but causes gnarled and unproductive pods due to an irritation set up by their saliva. They even attack the potato crop, and when potato aphid strikes, it reduces the yield decidedly. Tomatoes which are close relatives of the potato plant also suffer from aphid infestation and scientists claim to have found in the neighborhood of 25,000 individual aphids on a single tomato plant.

To make a spray for the control of aphids, you should put a teaspoonful of Black Leaf 40 in a gallon of water and add enough laundry soap to make suds. You may ask why the soap is added to the spray. The explanation goes back to a rather difficult scientific reason, but it all comes down to the fact that water spreads out more rapidly and covers a surface more thoroughly when it contains soap. You might say that "water is wetter" when soapy.

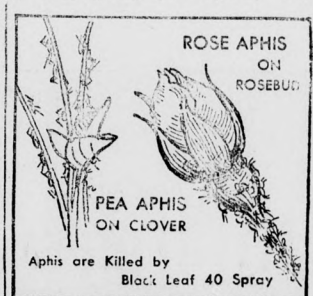

There are certain plants which are found exceedingly difficult to spray. For example the cabbage leaf when covered with aphid curls up and forms a cup with the aphid inside. The same happens with potato leaves and with other plants. The beginner who comes along with a sprayer and shoots only "as the rain falls" will do practically no damage to the aphid hidden away under their protecting roof of curled up leaves. Like a true 5th columnist they bore from within. The spray must wet the aphid if it is to kill them.

The reason so much emphasis is put on aphid control in the Victory Garden is because of the way these insects multiply and increase without the gardener being aware of it unless he is watchful and knows what to look for. The little green insects seem quite harmless in the beginning. They are tiny—there are only a few of them to start with and because they do not run around they seem half dead when you first observe them.

However they are very busy—each aphid adult gives birth to living young and the crop is about 8 to 10 young per day. In two weeks these offspring are sufficiently grown to begin in turn giving birth to baby aphids—Mating is not necessary with these pests. It is readily seen that a very few aphids can start an infestation that can grow to dangerous proportions in a couple of weeks.

Spray! Spray! Spray! Especially spray the "seed crop" of aphids before they have time to multiply themselves by hundreds each. Here if ever is even a stitch in time saves nine.

Sgt. Heaver In Service 30 Years

Master Sergeant Sylvester Heaver, husband of Mrs. Sadie M. Heaver of Campbell, has but seven months to go to complete thirty years in the U. S. Army. Early in his life he was attracted by a career in the army and at the age of nineteen, enlisted and was assigned to the 3rd Infantry and in only three years became a first sergeant.

Heaver remained with the 3rd Infantry until 1926 when he was transferred to the 25th Infantry which was in Hawaii. In 1929 he was assigned to the 1st Infantry, in 1935 to the 21st, back to the 3rd from 1937 to 1941 when he became a master sergeant.

He favors the Infantry as the cream of the army. In fact it is the only one he has any respect for. "It's a man's outfit, and a guy has to be good to stay with it," he said, and went on to intimate that anything else is just "jelly beans."

Comparison between the old army and the new, Sergeant Heaver is of the opinion that without a doubt the army of today is by far more efficient, more mobile equipment—equipment that the old army never dreamed of. He believes that the personnel is better educated, although, physically, the men of the former army could possibly stand greater hardships. Sergeant Heaver's physical condition has been so good that in the 29 years of service he has never missed a day of duty through sickness and he has been able to engage in active combat up to Guadalcanal.

More Elaborate Ice Follies This Year

New and delightful, a completely different edition of the famed Ice Follies is being presented nightly by the Shipstads and Johnson at Winterland in San Francisco.

By far the most magnificent entertainment ever presented, Ice Follies includes 28 separate acts, eleven of which are elaborate production sequences. Special attention has been given in the current edition to bringing together separate elements and building them around a unified idea. The result is a streamlined, rapid-fire version of a musical revue on ice that would have warmed the heart of Flo Ziegfeld.

Larger in scope than any event in either the show or the sports world, Ice Follies brings here a cast of 120 skaters, a 45 per cent increase in personnel over last year when the company included 85 blade artists.

Not only is the troupe larger, but the Shipstad brothers and Johnson have added a number of new artists to the roster of stars to be seen. New in the feminine contingent are Norah McCarthy, Canadian and North American Women's Senior champion, recently turned professional to join the Ice Follies, and pert, blonde Betty Atkinson, a finished acrobatic skater who was recruited from the ranks of Broadway musical comedy.

Still captivating the rink fans are Shipstad and Johnson, Frick and Frack, Bess Ehrhardt, Heinie Brock, Ruby and Bobby Maxson, Roy Shipstad, Colson and Claudet—all in new routines, and in all 30 top-flight stars.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

YOUR REFRIGERATOR AND HOW TO USE IT!

1 0 to 15 Degrees.

FROZEN DESSERTS AND FOODS

Frozen vegetables, fish and desserts should be placed inside the freezer compartment.

2 14 to 37 Degrees.

MEAT STORAGE

Fresh meat, fish, cold meats and left-over cooked meats should be placed directly below the freezer unit in a tray or in waxed paper.

3 38 to 40 Degrees.

MILK JUICES AND BEVERAGES

Fresh milk should be placed in the refrigerator as soon as possible. This prevents bacteria growth and vitamin losses. Keep tall bottles and fruit juices here, too.

4 40 to 43 Degrees.

In this zone of moderate humidity keep your left-over canned vegetables (with juice and covered) and your ripe tomatoes.

5 40 to 43 Degrees.

BUTTER AND DAIRY PRODUCTS

This entire shelf will carry your bulk foods to see you through the week. Put here eggs, butter, margarine, cream cheese, puddings and your prepared salads for chilling.

6 40 to 45 Degrees.

GARDEN FRESH PRODUCE

Trim and wash your Victory Gardens produce and keep it under adequate refrigeration to save vitamins and flavor.

SAVE FOOD • SAVE MONEY
SAVE VITAMINS

A place for everything and everything in its proper place is a good rule to observe with food storage in your refrigerator. Follow the same orderly arrangement you see in the big refrigerators in modern markets and food stores. ☆☆ Today when you are buying a week's supply of food at a time, you must make every bit of space count in your refrigerator. Keep your refrigerator cleaned and oiled and in good repair. It is too valuable to abuse or neglect.
